DYNAMITE Makes a Difference

It Takes a Neighborhood to Heal a Horse

Valentine's Day 2007, and I was heartbroken. My seventeen year old horse had just been kicked in the foreleg badly enough that he was not bearing any weight on his leg and it was also bleeding. The force of the kick had created a puncture wound. As I was waiting for the vet thinking the worst and worrying and becoming very emotional, I heard the words "touch him." I had just finished my Reiki training and had finished all my acupressure classes so I switched gears and started Reiki. We both became calmer. This was the beginning of our journey to be totally immersed in energy healing along with the wonderful Dynamite supplements.

The vet arrived and took x-rays. He called later that day and wanted to see us at his office. The x-rays showed that he had a 4" crack in his radius along with spider fractures. He said there was a 50-50 chance that he would recover. We could put screws in it (surgery), but he was an older horse or we could try and heal him ourselves. We chose the latter. The vet strongly recommended that we tie him to the ceiling so he couldn't lay down. I didn't feel comfortable doing this so we didn't. The vet was also worried about bone infection with the puncture wound so he received antibiotics. We were also told to be aware that laminitis was a good possibility.

Bandit was stalled for a week and then put on turn-out. His Dynamite healing protocol (as suggested by my Sponsor Rowan Emrys) was:

- 20 drops of Trace Minerals Concentrate for 10 days
- 4 ounces of Izmine™
- 2 ounces of Hiscorbadyne®
- MSM
- 2 teaspoons of yucca
- Dyna-Pro™ 2 times a day
- 1 cup PGR
- Dynamite Vitamins
- Release™
- Dyna-Spark™
- Miracle Clay™ when heat showed up

The balance of his protocol included:

- Antibiotics
- Pysmpytum
- Magnets
- Daily acupressure treatments
- Reiki
- Light therapy
- Hair analysis

He didn't muscle-test for the magnets until later in his healing. He also told me when to take them off. By watching Bandit, he told me when he was ready for more room, ready for his bandage to be off and to "quit poking me."

He layed almost every night. Although this worried me I figured he wouldn't do it if he couldn't. We didn't have much of a problem with the worry of laminitis. In the beginning there was heat in his front good legs. We applied Miracle Clay™ and that always took care of the heat.

I am very grateful for the people in my neighborhood. For the love, reiki and energy that was sent to my horse. Also for the people who let me use their barn and paddock area. For the friend who checked on him, cleaned his stall while I was at work. For the phone calls inquiring about his healing progress. And for Dynamite – a big hurrah as I felt very confident in healing him myself knowing what I had behind me to support him.

We were truly blessed as we gathered information from many people. Bandit was such a vibrant being in his healing. He always had a bright eye and good attitude.

When the vet came seven weeks later to do the second x-ray Bandit decided to buck and run at his arrival. The vet's words were "We won't tell Barbaro about this." The x-ray showed everything was filling in and you could see a slight line where the crack was. He said I could start working him into riding in June. This was great, for at first he said

I would not be able to ride him for a year. Bandit shows no limp in his walk, trot or canter.

Without all the love, support and Dynamite, I think the outcome may have been different. Bandit is happy to still be around and I am so happy to still have him with me. Thank you all!
